How to open safari view controller in iPhone application programmatically A: For the first part of your question, use UIApplicationMain to open a specific URL. That'll give you control of what app is launched. For the second part, call UIApplicationWillTerminate and do what you want there. Q: Is it possible to generate PDF from Power Query data table in Visual Studio? I've been trying to create a report in Visual Studio using Power Query. The table produced by Power Query looks like the following: I tried exporting the data table to a PDF using Save As, but the PDF file was generated from the Power Query in Excel, it looks like the following: Is it possible to directly generate a PDF file with Power Query data table in Visual Studio? A: As documented here, "we added support for exporting a Power Query query as a Microsoft Office (Office 365) template (.dotx) file, which can be downloaded, uploaded, and opened in PowerPoint or Visual Studio". I then saved the contents of the Power Query query in a file called myReport.dotx and opened it in PowerPoint. The macro file included was: The macro must be saved somewhere in the local PC. To generate myReport.dotx file, I'll use the powerQueryReport.ps1 macro. When loaded in the Power Query, it gets saved as myReport.dotx file. Power Query then opens myReport.dotx file automatically on opening Power Query. To connect a Power Query data table to this report, I downloaded it to another computer and in the new Power Query, dragged the myReport.dotx file there. The data table connected.
